Controversy Has Major Potential Impact on State Budget

- The controversy regarding private health insurance plans and children with autism spectrum disorders and their families and what the health plans should cover has major potential impact on the State budget.
- Many advocates for families with children with autism spectrum disorders claim that the State could save tens of millions of dollars if insurance companies covered many of the services currently paid for by the State.
- Those advocates also claim that private health insurance companies should have been required to provide certain intervention services for children with autism spectrum disorders, which could have prevented the need for more expensive services that the State is paying for now and in future years.
- Private health insurance companies have previously have disagreed with the assertions made by advocates.

In an informational hearing by the Senate Select Committee on Autism in April, Steinberg said he wanted to bring together all the representatives and advocates of all the parties connected to this issue to hear the different perspectives and concerns that could lead to possible solutions, including discussion on who and what must be covered under the federal Mental Health Parity Act.

Regional Centers Coordinate Services Under Contract by State

The 21 non-profit regional centers under contract with the Department of Developmental Services, coordinates community-based services and supports to over 240,000 children and adults with developmental disabilities, including autism spectrum disorders (ASD)

The numbers of persons diagnosed with autism spectrum disorders and eligible for regional center coordinated services has exploded into what advocates and policymakers alike say is an “epidemic”, with the population served growing from over 8,700 in 1997 to nearly 37,000 persons as of December 2007.

The number does not include thousands of other children and young adults who may be diagnosed with Autism Spectrum Disorders but are not eligible for regional center coordinated services after the State narrowed eligibility in 2004 as one of the budget reduction measures enacted.

Steinberg’s SB 1283 Dealing with Health Insurance Grievances Passes Senate

Steinberg introduced this year legislation that touches on a part of the larger issue of health insurance plans and children with autism spectrum disorders and their families, focusing on the handling of grievances against a health plan.

The bill, last amended on May 28th, passed the State Senate on June 1st by a vote of 23 to 10. It is now in the Assembly and will soon be referred to a policy committee, likely Assembly Health Committee, for hearing. No hearing date has yet been set. LATEST ACTION 06/01/2010: PASSED State Senate 23 to 10. In Assembly.

NEXT STEPS: Must be heard and reported out of Assembly policy committee (likely Assembly Health Committee) on or before July 2nd.

CDCAN COMMENT: Another bill by Steinberg, SB 1282 dealing with applied behavioral analysis, passed the State Senate June 1, 2010 by a vote of 23 to 12 and is now in the Assembly waiting to be referred to a policy committee (likely Assembly Health Committee). SB 1282 would until January 1, 2017, make it an unfair business practice for a person to use certain titles or terms implying that he/she is certified as an applied behavior analyst unless he/she holds a current certification from a national organization that certifies applied behavior analysts and that is accredited by the National Commission on Certifying Agencies, or to state, advertise, or represent that he/she is certified or licensed by a governmental agency as an applied behavior analyst.

Members of the Senate Select Committee on Autism & Related Disorders

The select committee has 15 members including not only Steinberg, but both the current Senate Republican Leader, Dennis Hollingsworth and the new incoming Senate Republican Leader Bob Dutton. The select committee also includes a parent of a child with developmental disabilities – Fran Pavley.

[Note: “select” essentially means a special temporary committee established to focus on a specific issue or problem. It does not hear or vote on bills or budget issues – but can focus attention on an issue or problem and refer potential legislation to the appropriate policy committees).

Democratic Select Committee Members: Elaine Alquist (also chair of the Senate Health Committee); Gil Cedillo, Lou Correa; Mark DeSaulnier; Dean Florez; Mark Leno (chair of the Senate Budget Subcommittee #3 on Health and Human Services); Carol Liu (chair of the Senate Human Services Committee); Alex Padilla; Fran Pavley; Curren Price, Jr.; Darrell Steinberg (Senate President Pro Tem and Select Committee Chair); and Lois Wolk
